Master Oils

HOW IT WORKS

Master Oils contains a high dose of omega-3 oils not found in other sources. Master Oils contains krill oil, a substance easily processed by cells. This oil mixture helps restore balance between fats from vegetables and fish, improving immune function.

Master Oils:

- Reduces serum triglyceride levels
- Reduces blood pressure
- Lowers risk of heart disease
- Improves mood and feelings of well-being
- Reduces symptoms in rheumatoid arthritis patients
- Reduces frequency of migraine headaches
- Improves vision (especially night vision)
- Possibly prevents breast, colon, prostate, and pancreatic cancers
- Lowers risk of autoimmune diseases like multiple sclerosis and rheumatoid arthritis

WHY YOU NEED IT

Most individuals consume too many fats from vegetable oils, called omega-6 fats; these tend to over-stimulate the immune system. However, most people consume too few marine oils that contain omega-3 fats, which counterbalance the action of vegetable oils. As a general rule, people need more omega-3 fats and fewer omega-6 fats in their diets.

Good fats constitute the most important part of our cell membranes. Along with proteins, they form the predominant structures of our cells and, consequently, our bodies. In fact, the brain is made up of over 60 percent fat. Essential fatty acids (EFAs) are those the body cannot make and include omega-3 fatty acids—which is why they're called "essential." However, over the past 10,000 years, the diet most of us eat has changed so radically that we are at high risk of neglecting our bodies of the fats required to maintain our cellular health.

Master Oils contains one of the best possible sources of omega-3 fats available today: krill oil, which is rich in the omega-3 fats called EPA and DHA. Since krill oil, a phospholipid, forces more storage of omega-3 fats in your body than fish oil, less krill oil is required to achieve the same benefit; only two capsules per day are recommended.

Unlike many probiotics on the market, Inner Balance Probiotics does not require refrigeration.
